Chicago Twirler Allows Only of a regular old-time circus catch, turn-McAleer Would Be Foolish to Try Out Youngsters This Fall—Nationals Turn Down Bush League Twirler.

By WILLIAM PEET.

Why, in the name of common sense, should Manager McAleer, of the Nationals, collect his new recruits, Somerlot, Cunningham, Ralston, and others, and put these men in his lineup right now, when the club is playing the best ball in years, and winning games?

A baseball writer on an afternoon pa-per suggests that this be done, so Mceven at the expense of sacrificing fifth or sixth position in the league standing. The fans in Washington who support the club want good baseball-they want to see the home club win. At present the Nationals are winning games, and McAleer seems to have hit the right combination.

The afternoon paper baseball writer eighth by making the youngster fan the wants McAleer to take a chance on a balmy, but it was too late then to make lot of untried material. A 10-to-1 bet up for the past, as that little run was that the quality of ball will greatly decrease if this is done. The club seems to be going along in good shape. Let next year take care of itself. As long as the club is going well now, why break it up?

Baseball writers should not tell a manager how to run his ball club. The manager is paid to run the team, and Mc-Aleer has given Washington the best baseball in years. Why not let him alone?

It was announced in several Virginia State newspapers yesterday that the Washington club had purchased the release of Pitcher Harvey Busey, of the Danville club, one of the most successful twirlers of the circuit, who has thus far won 19 out of 24 games.

Manager McAleer last night stated that threw Magee out at second when that this report was erroneous, and that player tried to stretch his hit into a Washington had not purchased Busey. He said that he was after another player n the Virginia League, but could not in relay, got the ball to second ahead of get him, and Busey was recommended, Doolin, who had rounded third, thinking but turned down.

He does not hit ther as he does when the sacks are empty I gave him a ball in Cleveland a couple of years ago that I was trying to waste.

"He hit it a lick with his bat and knocked it over the roof of a building outside the grounds. I pushed one to him in the last series with the Naps that was inside and down around his knees. He bounced it off the left field fence for a triple. All you can do with Larry is take a chance.

"Now it's different with Cobb. Ty can hit almost anything, too, but he's not as hard for me to pitch to as Lajoje. You can fool Cobb where you haven't a chance with Larry. When I'm Litching against Detroit I always take a chance that I can outguess Cobb, and sometimes

WRIGHT IS VICTOR

Whitney Defeated in Newport Tennis Tourney.

WINNER WILL PLAY LARNED

Whitney Leads at 5-4 in the Last Set, but Collides with Umpire's Chair, Turning His Ankle, Wright Scoring the Remaining Two Sets Easily-East vs. West To-day.

Newport, Aug. 23 .- A. H. Whitney, a youth of nineteen, came within a streke of scoring the sensation of the thirtieth all-comers' national lawn tennis chamonship tournament to-day. At the critcal moment he fell and so injured himself that his opponent, Beals C. Wright, the ex-champion and hero of many a hard-fought tournament, avoided defeat and took his place in the final round by the score of 4-6; 7-5; 4-6; 7-5.

It was the narrowest sort of an escape for Wright. He was being cleanly outplayed, and he knew it, for he had worked with desperation through five grueling sets.

Whitney was always strongly aggressive, and to the surprise of the experts he surpassed Wright at every department of the game. Such a match, following New York, Aug. 23 .- Over 6,000 persons the splendid showing that Wright made owers have ever seen, and that six heats Coast doubles champion, Thomas C.

lesson from McLoughlin's match of yes-Colorado E in the Matron Futurity, won terday. Not once did he sacrifice speed ball deeply and at terrific pace the baff pending on his forehand and backhand drive, with an occasional lob to the base line, that sent the ball in bounds so that the younger had to put a wonderful length to his returns. Wright continued until he was two sets down. He was beginning to realize that the boy was outplaying him, and he was Wright worked as he has not before in the tournament. He had to save himself, and by sheer desperation he brought the sets to 2-all.

Wright led at three love in the fifth set, when Whitney began to turn his attack against him. He also led at 4-2, only to have the youth use his crossourt shots so well that he ran three games and to the front at 5-4, and with the vantage pointing in his favor.

Whitney started to sprint for the ball. As he did so he collided with the umpire's chair, fell, and twisted his leg. That was the end of his chances. He limped through the next two games, as Wright easily scored them, the boy getting only three points. It was a sorry finale to so brilliant an effort, but at any rate the boy had made for himself a permanent place to be reckoned with as a coming star

Again the East and West are drawn in the final, and the great match tomorrow will determine the challenger of William A. Larned, the five-times holder. Larned indulged in practice to-day against Dean Mathey and others of the vounger players here.
